Staying The Course

On Wednesday of this week Prime Minister Dr Terrence Drew participated in a live discussion over Freedom Radio, during the course of which he apprised the nation of several findings concerning numerous acts of corruption by the former government, updated the country as to the state of the economy, and outlined, in broad terms, his administration's progress to date, and ways in which certain problems will be tackled.

It was no surprise to our people that the new administration has already begun to uncover the misdeeds of their predecessors in office, but, as the breath and depth of their nastiness are realised, many are shocked and finding themselves gasping in disbelief.

One particular ruse has been that of setting up so-called 'security' companies which were awarded government contracts without other entities being afforded the opportunity to tender bids.

Government facilities, especially JNF General Hospital and Government Headquarters, were at the top of the list of those targetted, with proceeds in the millions of dollars over several years, enuring to one particular family.

Cruise Schedule is Subject to Change

No doubt, there is more, much more, to be uncovered. Indeed, indications are to the effect that we are only at the beginning. We urge the new administration to stay the course, and bring the culprits to justice. Not out of any sense of revenge, but as warning to would be future perpetrators that crime does not pay, and also that our people know, expect, and deserve better.

It was indeed most heartrending, although not entirely surprising, to learn from the prime minister and minister of finance that the nation's finances are in a rather parlous state.

All along most of our people had doubted the loose and callous boastings of 'the former fellow' that the economy was performing so well, and that the finances were in such great shape. Many will recall his refusal, time and again, to publicise the IMF's annual reports.

We of this newspaper once again compliment all members of the new Labour administration for the great start which has been made to putting our nation and its affairs back on a good footing. The detractors are many, and they are most anxious to throw you off course.

We urge all members of the new administration to be open and honest with our people.

In every regard you have made a great start, and we urge you to STAY THE COURSE!

Workers' Union Guest Speaker Director Roberitine Webbe: "Creatives

By: Precious Mills

BASSETTERRE, St.Kitts (Monday 31st October 2022) -

"Creatives are workers too!"

That was the topic addressed by guest speaker at the 83rd annual conference of the St.Kitts-Nevis Trades and Labour Union delivered by 22-year-old Roberitine Webbe, the Director of the Creative Economy in the Ministry of Culture who encouraged ending the stigma about creatives so as to improve equality, diversity and the inclusion of the orange economy across the country.

Webbe, who is a professional dancer in the field of the creative arts, expressed while speaking at the live broadcast event held on Sunday 30th October 2022 at the SWMC (Solid Waste Management Corporation) Conference Room at Taylor's Range in Basseterre, that the inclusion of the creative arts should be taken most seriously.

According to her: "Creative arts should be entwined in all sectors, the arts must be where diversity and inclusion should be taken most seriously. Improving equality, diversity and the inclusion of the orange economy across the country is key to releasing the true potential of our nation's artistic and cultural talent, and it starts with ending the stigma and moving with us providing the necessary resources and programmes."

As pointed out by the Creative Economy Director, "Creative arts are a form of expression not bound by language."

She explained: "They involve skill, imagination, and inspiration. How can we degrade, demoralize and hobbitize something that is so much a part of us. The creative arts can be found in many forms such as literature, painting, drama, music, dance, robotics among many others. The things that are a part of our way of life. This is our formula to diversify and grow our economy, but this can only happen if our creatives are involved."

She highlighted that creatives are workers "because we are risk takers... because we have the dare to fail attitude...we are willing to be different...we can sometimes be impulsive, fickle and change our minds quite often."

Webbe went on to share: "For us to continue our global impact, the art that we produce as a people should not just be outstanding in form and content, but relevant to the widest possible audiences. We do this in the hope that the ideas within will help anyone with the power to appoint and promote to support more outstanding people who live for the arts. All of us in this very room are responsible for what is happening in our country. Creative art is happening. If we sit back and do nothing, we shall lose our creatives and we shall lose ourselves."

"Often we hear, creativity is intelligence having fun (and often too that we hear this being associated with the famous Albert Einstein). Under common perception, we see creative people as gifted children that have been blessed with such talent towards solving grand challenges in life. Which is similar to creatives at work. We dubbed them as game changers and at times, envied by others. The thing is, even if you have no creativity, when you begin to work, you realize that this is something that can be taught, learnt and developed," she highlighted.

"There is no doubt that creativity is the most important human resource of all and this country runs on that. Without creativity in our course of action, there would be no progress, and we would be forever repeating the same patterns," Webbe expressed.

SKNT&LU Installs New Executive Committee To Represent Workers

By: Spokesman Newsroom

BASSETTERRE, St.Kitts (Monday 31st October 2022)-Under the theme 'The Time To Rebuild Is Now', delegates gathered at the 83rd annual conference of the St.Kitts-Nevis Trades & Labour Union on Sunday 30th October 2022 at the Solid Waste Management Corporation (SWMC) Conference Room located at Taylor's Range in Basseterre which saw the election of new and returning members making up the executive body of the workers' organisation.

Elected officers President-Sydney Bridgewater, Second Vice President-James Pemberton, General Secretary-Precious Mills and Treasurer Tanessa Caines Charles have been returned to their positions. Additionally, new comer Gwenedene Pemberton has been elected as the Assistant General Secretary; a post previously occupied by Curtis Francis who is now the newly-elected First Vice President.

Returning floor members of the executive committee include Nadine Natta, Mitchel Slader, Eva Henderson, George Dixon, Stanley Franks Jr., Oscar Mills, Julian Morton and new comer Lloyd Rouse.

Elections were conducted during the afternoon business session.

President Bridgewater, in his address at the public session of the conference, outlined that the SKNT&LU remains relevant.

"Our Union remains quite relevant and often times it is the affected workers who can testify. This organization, however, needs workers to actively strengthen the vibrancy and publicity of what being part of a Union means to you. As this year's conference theme rightly says 'The Time To Rebuild Is Now!'

The beautiful thing about event themes is that we can all share our view and give our interpretation of what it applies to.

Bridgewater referred to the Founder of the St.Kitts Workers League Thomas Manchester, who in an open letter to the people of St.Kitts and Nevis, said in part that league was formed for the purpose as embodied in the words of our motto: "For The Good That We Can Do". At the outset it was decided that as a body we should associate ourselves with any movement that tends for betterment of conditions in St.Kitts-Nevis, or generally for the improvement of man".

He added: "As the history books would recall, 'Mr. Tom' as he was called, had established the St. Kitts Workers' League Ltd. and was elected it first President in 1932 at a time when only the most able men would dare to be involved in associations devoted to the upliftment of workers in the field or the factory or organisations which adopted the anti-colonial posture."

In wrapping up his remarks, Bridgewater commented: "Workers, social partners, ladies and gentleman and all other alike friendly to the upliftment of workers, historically a solid foundation has been set for the building of an environment which sees about the advancement and welfare of workers, the working environment. Let us rebuild together, now! The future is in our hands."

PM Drew Talks About New Gov't Addressing 'In The Red' Money Management Matters Of Former Administration

By: Spokesman Newsroom

BASSETTERRE, St.Kitts (Thursday 3rd November 2022)-Prime Minister and Minister of Finance Dr. Terrance Drew - who is also the Leader of the St.Kitts-Nevis Labour Party (SKNLP)-is accusing the former Harris-led administration of poor money management which has caused the country 'to be in the red' when it comes to finances including certain bodies, companies, organisations associated with the government being affected thus requiring assistance from the new administration to recover.

Speaking on Freedom FM's 'Issues' programme aired live on Wednesday 2nd November 2022, In addressing the topic and the economy in terms of where St.Kitts-Nevis is as a country, PM Drew said "we inherited a deficit. For those who may not understand, it means more was going out than was coming in. Instead of a surplus, it was the opposite of a surplus. So, it means therefore in other terms, we are in the red when it comes to our overall finances, and this report would have been delivered to me by the FS [Financial Secretary] just recently after doing an assessment."

He continued: "But that means that there are a number of critical bodies, companies, organisations associated with the government.

As gathered, such includes the St.Kitts Electricity Company Ltd., the St. Christopher Air and Sea Ports Authority (SCASPA), Solid Waste Management Corporation (SWMC) and Development Bank of St.Kitts and Nevis.

According to PM Drew, "SCASPA has been struggling... and so we have to in a sense inject some funds there also if needed ... He informed that at SWMC "there I basically no money there or very little; cannot run itself...and there the government has to come in to help..."

He went on further to state: "A lot of the money that Solid Waste had, a lot of it was spent on the yellow smart bins; millions was spent on that and that really hit Solid Waste very very hard and so we see how these transaction would have taken place ...money ended up in different areas but Solid Waste is also financially not sound at this time..."

Also, in relation to Development Bank, the Finance Minister highlighted: "We have taken steps to stabilize the bank but the bank was in serious trouble when we got there...no money...excessive overdrafts; could not meet the daily requirements in terms of even loans that were already given out by the bank. The bank is in a sad state. But we have taken the decision that that bank is a fundamental bank for our development we have stepped in to make sure that we stabilize that bank."

Pertaining to SKELEC, PM Drew said the company "has tremendous challenges in terms of its finances to the point where the government now from the consolidated funds have to be paying the fuel charge for SKELEC above a certain point which is equating sometimes $9 up to $11 million dollars per month."

According to the Finance Minister: "We have decided that that has increased somewhat and we have decided as a government, we'll pay it so that this cost is not passed on to the people but SKELEC at this time as a company needs significant financial injection from the government in order to function, and that is to make sure that that high cost is not passed on to our people, especially during this COVID time and just post COVID where people would have used up a lot of their resources; many persons were out of work and so forth and so we have decided that we will take a brunt of that hit to protect the people."

He made mention that SKELEC had significant issues maybe about a month or two ago when the generators broke down.

"These are the old gen sets; some of them probably 30 something years old which means it's time to change them out. Each one of them cost $35 million so I'm talking real money and we need about two of them just to maintain our baseline energy requirement, and we will therefore invest in it because we cannot build a country if we don't have energy and we won't have sufficient energy at this time. As I said then, the government would have would have purchased two smaller sized generators."

"We have to go and rent generators of these type because when we order these gen sets, it lasts couple decades or more, and they have to be built so therefore they would be in the process of being built and it could take up to a year to be built, and during that time, we need to secure our energy base line and therefore Christmas is coming and a time when the country is going to be opened up and carnival will be in full sway, tourism will be in full sway and we have I make sure that we have the necessary energy to really propel this season that we're expecting, and therefore we have to go into renting these generators which could cost a few hundred thousand dollars per month just to ensure we can supply the energy that is needed for our people," Dr. Drew commented.

The Finance Minister spoke about a "significant thing" in terms of the government looking at "renewable energy to see about accessing fuel at a much cheaper cost which the government has already begun negotiations..."

Sustainable Tourism: Stakeholders learn about St. Kitts' culture and heritage

BASSETERRE, ST. KITTS, November 3, 2022 (MMS-SKN) — Over twenty five participants, drawn from employees in public and private tourism sectors, are taking part in the St. Kitts Sustainable Destination Council of the Ministry of Tourism-organised two-day 'I Speak St. Kitts Culture and Heritage Workshop 2022' that opened on Wednesday November 2, at the CUNA Conference Centre in Fortlands, West Basseterre.

Opening the workshop was Sustainable Tourism Coordinator in the St. Kitts Ministry of Tourism, Mr Kenney Manning, who observed that according to the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO), cultural tourism is one of the fastest growing segments of the tourism industry, accounting for an estimated 40% of all tourism worldwide.

The purpose of the two-day workshop, which takes a break on Thursday November 3 to resume on Friday November 4, is to equip participants with the knowledge and skills they need to 'speak St. Kitts Culture and Heritage' as a means of contributing to the long-term well-being of the destination as a whole.

According to Mr Manning, the goals of the workshop are to "increase participants' awareness and knowledge of some key aspects of St. Kitts and Nevis culture and opportunities for tourism in St. Kitts, and to increase participants' awareness of the value and importance of protecting St. Kitts' cultural resources and promoting sustainable tourism."

Present at the workshop were Chair of the St. Kitts Sustainable Destination Council, who is also the Assistant Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Tourism, Mrs Diannille Taylor-Williams, and a secretary in the Ministry of Tourism, Ms Johneal Harvey, who assisted with the registration of the participants and ensuring the smooth running of the workshop.

Facilitating the workshop was Mr Leonard Stapleton, who after a 15-year teaching career that included heading up the Geography and Social Department of the Verchilds High School took a job at Brimstone Hill Fortress National Park, a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and also served on the board of the St. Christopher National Trust, a local NGO committed to preserving and promoting St. Kitts' heritage.

Mr Stapleton, who is a firm believer that tourism is one of the greatest opportunities to raise awareness of St. Kitts' past and traditions, has researched St. Kitts and Nevis' black history and wrote the book 'Places of Memory' which was published by UNESCO. The book features 33 sites related to the enslaved Africans on St. Kitts and Nevis and will eventually be used in high schools as part of the local history curriculum.

Day One of the workshop was divided into two sessions, where in the first session Mr Stapleton talked about Sustainable Tourism. He took time to define sustainable tourism, illustrating his lecture with a series of slides with a background of local music as he highlighted the market opportunity/demand for sustainable tourism.

A general view of the participants of the two-day 'I Speak St. Kitts Culture and Heritage Workshop 2022' held at the CUNA Conference Centre in Fortlands, West Basseterre.

"When one speaks about sustainable tourism, you have to remember that it is buttressed on 3 Ps - Planet, People, and Profit," observed Mr Stapleton. "Most people when they hear sustainable tourism they think mostly on the planet side - the environmental side. That would only be partially correct."

One of the most significant parts of sustainable tourism, according to Mr Stapleton, is that tourism is done in such a way that the local man shares an equitable part of the profit. He noted: "It cannot be that we are getting a million passengers, the hotel rooms are filled and making lots of profit and the local persons in the communities around St. Kitts and Nevis are not feeling the money directly."

Session Two of the presentation, had two subsections 'Exploring Three Categories/Elements of St. Kitts and

Windsong Foundation donates another new school bus to Nevis Ministry of Education

NIA CHARLESTOWN NEVIS (November 01, 2022) — Students on Nevis are now better placed to benefit from additional transportation for their daily commute to and from school thanks to another donation from the Windsong Foundation.

Hon. Troy Liburd, Jr. Minister of Education, commissioned the Toyota Coaster bus at a handing over ceremony at the Artisan Village in Pinney's Estate on November 01, 2022, and expressed gratitude for the foundation's partnership with the Nevis Island Administration (NIA)

"We have a fleet of six school buses so this is going to make seven. Five of these school buses are donations from the Windsong Foundation and I want to start off by expressing our heartfelt gratitude to the Windsong Foundation. They have come on as a charitable organization to partner with the Nevis Island Administration, to partner with the Ministry of Education and we are so grateful for that partnership.

"A little under two years ago we were right at this location and at that time we had taken delivery of two buses, so now this is the third bus in just under two years and prior to that in, I think, 2017 we would have taken delivery of two new buses at that time. So five of our seven buses that we have running as school buses are donations from the Windsong Foundation," he said.

Mr. Liburd used the occasion to speak on the significance of the foundation's donations to Nevis and urged those using the school buses to take care of them.

"I want to ask everybody who would have use of the buses to take care of the buses. They are donations and whenever anybody gives you anything, you want to take very, very good care of them.

"This donation is just under EC$190,000 so it is indeed a significant donation, and when you add this to the others that we have gotten, just the three we have gotten in the past, less than two years, it is indeed significant. It is over half a million EC dollars that we have received in kind donation from the Windsong Foundation. So we really appreciate them and I want to give the commitment on behalf of the Ministry of Education and on behalf of all of the people of Nevis that we are certainly going to do our best to take good care of these buses. We really, really appreciate it," he said.

The brief ceremony was chaired by Mr. Kevin Barrett, Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Education; and Pastor Bernard Browne prayed for God's blessing and protection for the drivers and students who will use the new school bus.

Maynard: SKELEC Workers, Management Working On Issues

By: Spokesman Newsroom

BASSETTERRE, St.Kitts (Thursday 3rd November 2022)- Minister of Public Infrastructure Konris Maynard, in giving an update about the St.Kitts Electricity Company Ltd. (SKELEC) workers who recently showed up outside his office located at Needsmust, has said matters are being addressed internally by staff and management following a meeting about their concerns.

On the morning of Tuesday 1st November 2022, those workers, in what persons described as a 'strike' stemming from the live a social media live broadcast, raised issues about payment including risk pay and concerns about management.

Notably, SKELEC is a private energy company in which the government has shares.

The following day (Wednesday), Maynard issued a press release on the matter which highlighted that the workers the management and staff will now proceed internally to address the issues raised, and with the support of the new Board of Directors, the Government looks forward to a much-improved synergy of work relations within SKELEC.

See full press release below:

On the morning of Tuesday 1 November 2022, a group of SKELEC staff gathered at the administration office of the Ministry of Public Infrastructure, et al, demanding a meeting with the Minister to discuss grievances they have had over the past several years. I completely understand their frustrations. However, since the election of the new Government Administration, there has been no formal or informal engagement, or request for engagement, of the Management of SKELEC, the new Board of Directors of SKELEC, or my Ministry, by the aggrieved staff. Therefore, the SKELEC staff's informal public demand to meet with me yesterday was procedurally premature and did not follow due Minister of Public Infrastructure Konris Maynard (left) is seen while in conversation with the SKELEC workers talking about issues process for professional industrial relations.

Consequently, the group was advised, and they agreed, that the proper course of action under this new dispensation is to first meet with the Management of SKELEC and formally register their grievances. Thereafter, the Management with the support of the new Board of Directors, must be afforded adequate time to respond, and engage with staff to address any issues. The Government is confident that the SKELEC Management, with the support of the new Board of Directors, is now well positioned to address the internal issues of SKELEC.

The group of SKELEC staff peacefully dispersed and returned to work shortly after engaging with me. A meeting was convened with the management and staff of SKELEC at 4pm on Tuesday 1 November 2022 where I provided opening remarks outlining the importance of adhering to proper process and reaffirming that, as a responsible Government, we will fully support the plight of workers once proper processes are followed and respected. The meeting proceeded in my absence so that the proper process could be restarted, and staff and management could have an opportunity to engage.

I am advised that the meeting was respectful, successful and that there was unanimity among staff in striking off two items from the 'List of Requests' that was widely circulated across social media, namely, the request for re-assignment of SKELEC Senior Management and the request for removal of a Director from the Board of Directors. It was agreed that the inclusion of these items to the 'List of Requests' by the unknown author of the list did not reflect the wishes of the majority of the staff.

The management and staff will now proceed internally to address the issues raised, and with the support of the new Board of Directors, the Government looks forward to a much-improved synergy of work relations within SKELEC.

Defence Minister Vows Taiwan Will Fight China To The End

By Keoni Everington, Staff Writer

As long as enemy has not landed troops, planted flags on central government buildings 'it has not won': Chiu rise, Minister of National Defense Chiu Kuo-cheng on Wednesday (2 November) said that Taiwan's armed forces will "fight to the end" against invading Chinese troops.

TAIPEI (Taiwan News) - As tensions in the Taiwan Strait

During a press briefing at The Legislative Yuan on Wednesday, Chiu was asked by a member of the media if Taiwan's armed forces could hold out without letting The People's Liberation Army (PLA) forces establish a beachhead.

Chiu responded by saying that "as long as the enemy is unable to land troops or plant their flags on the upper floors of the buildings of Taiwan's central government ministries, it has not won," reported ETtoday.

Chiu also said that Taiwan "absolutely has a chance of winning" a war with China. The defense minister said that in addition to ensuring control of the air and sea, the military is also working on strengthening its ground defenses, and the armed forces will "definitely fight to the end."

He stressed that the use of force by Taiwan's military is a last resort and that it will not fire the first shot. However, if China continues to repeatedly pressure Taiwan, Chiu said that it will have to respond accordingly.

IMF Backs Latam Progressive Taxes And Fiscal Discipline

By Rodrigo Campos

NEW YORK, 2 November (Reuters) - The International Monetary Fund (IMF) will continue to be supportive of progressive tax reforms in Latin America (LatAm) and The Caribbean, while fiscal and monetary policies that have worked should be kept in place to give economies support, a top IMF official said on Wednesday.

For most of the region “the story there is actually they have pretty good fiscal and monetary frameworks,” said Nigel Chalk, acting director of the Western Hemisphere Department at The IMF. “So it’s more a question of letting the frameworks work and do their job as they were designed.”

Chalk, speaking ahead of the release of the fund’s regional economic outlook for Latam and The Caribbean, said the focus on lowering debt and zeroing in on containing inflation have been very supportive of the region’s economies.

“With inflation yet to abate and most economies still operating at or near potential, monetary policy should avoid easing prematurely and must stay the course,” said the fund in the regional report.

The fund said last month tightening global financial conditions and high inflation clouded the outlook for Latam and Caribbean economies. While it lifted its output growth forecast for 2022 in the region to 3.5% from a previous 3% estimate, it lowered the 2023 view by 0.3 percentage point to 1.7%.

According to the IMF “a sharp fall in commodity prices and social unrest are important risks,” for Latam and the Caribbean - where street clashes were beginning to pop up even before the pandemic.

With the specter of higher interest rates in the developed world, and the expected siphoning of cash out of emerging markets, the fund has given support to reform measures that look to raise more cash, but in a progressive way.

“A tax reform that generates more revenue, and puts more money in social systems, in supporting lower income families, supporting the middle class, that’s definitely a more progressive system,” Chalk said, pointing out the fund was “very supportive of the goals of the Chilean tax reform.”

SKNNCC Significantly Increases Road March Prize Monies

As a follow-up to a meeting with registered Road March Contenders held in early October, 2022 the St Kitts Nevis National Carnival Committee (SKNNCC) has confirmed that all Road March bands, soca artists, and calypsonians must submit in writing the name of their tune to be considered for Road March to the SKNNCC Secretariat by Friday, 18th November.

Road March tunes must be publicly released in full on a local Radio Station no later than Friday 25th November to be considered as part of the competition. Judging for the Road March contest will take place between 5:00am and 11:00am on J’ouvert morning, Monday, December 26th.

Judging will be split into two (2) categories. Contenders will score points at various locations along the downtown Basseterre J’ouvert route. In addition, registered bands, soca artists, and calypsonians are required to perform their registered songs at an identified area in the city center. In an effort to get the early release of songs and more contenders, the SKNNCC has increased the prize monies for Road March.

For the first time in the history of Carnival, the Road March winner will receive EC$20,000, almost doubling what it was in 2019, the last time the competition was held. The First runner-up will receive EC$15,000 and the Second runner-up will walk away with EC$10,000. Competition rules and regulations are available online at www.skncarnival.com or at the Carnival Secretariat in the E.C Daniel Building on Cayon Street.

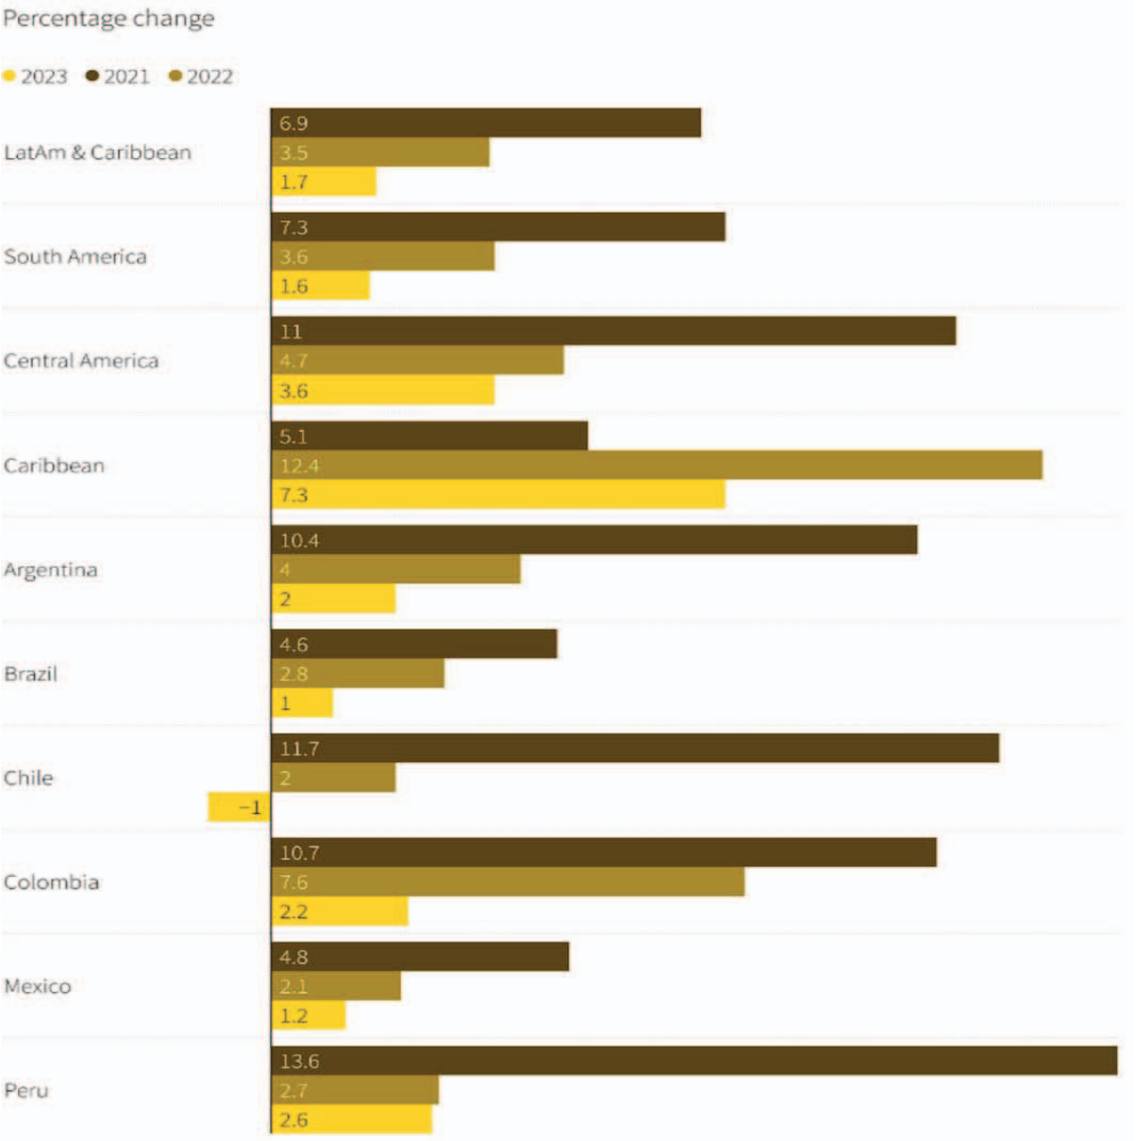

After a two (2) year hiatus, J’ouvert Celebrations will return to the streets of Basseterre in full on the 26th December from 5:00am to 12:00noon.

are also on the IMF menu for increasing revenues.

“But we know they’re inherently regressive because the poor spend more of their income on energy,” said Chalk.

“You have to take the money and you have to give that back through social assistance programs in order to make the combined effect on spending and revenue socially equitable.”

Former Latin American Leaders Urge US Change On Cuba

By Megan Janetsky

Thursday 29 September 2022: As a Hurricane Ian shredded Cuban flag flies aloft children play in the seawater from the waves breaking on Malecon in Havana. Photo credit: Ramon Espinosa (AP file).

HAVANA (AP) - Eighteen former Latin American and Caribbean leaders have signed a letter to US President Joe Biden asking The United States to remove its six-decade embargo on Cuba in the wake of devastation inflicted by Hurricane Ian.

The letter, shared with The Associated Press ahead of its Wednesday release, also requests that Biden remove Cuba from its list of state sponsors of terrorism for providing refuge to leaders of a guerrilla group that is now set to reenter peace talks with Colombia, an American ally.

The letter comes as Cuba is suffering its worst economic, political and energy crises of the century so far, spurring a migratory exodus from the island. It was exacerbated by Hurricane Ian, which walloped western Cuba before hitting southern Florida late last month.

"We ask you, Mr President, to take into account this dramatic situation that thousands of Cubans are experiencing and do whatever is necessary to lift those restrictions that affect the most vulnerable," the letter reads.

Among the signatories are former Brazilian President Dilma Rousseff, two former Colombian leaders - Juan Manuel Santos and Ernesto Samper - and former leaders from Bolivia to Belize. All of the signers are leftists or centrists. Notably absent were signatures from right-wing politicians, underscoring the deep divisions that the Caribbean island still provokes in the region.

The United Nations General Assembly is scheduled to vote this week on a resolution to condemn the trade embargo and it is expected to pass again for the 30th consecutive year.

Yet former Colombian President Ernesto Samper told The Associated Press in an interview that he doesn't want the letter to be viewed as a political statement. "At this moment, what worries us is that the ones paying the cost ... are Cubans who are going without food, medicine or electricity," Samper told The AP.

The trade embargo was imposed in 1962 as the Cuban revolution veered toward socialism. It has restricted Cuba's access to a vast array of products, as well as international aid, and financial resources.

Island officials say the restrictions have made it harder to recover from the hurricane, which destroyed 14,000 homes and caused long-term damage to the country's electrical grid.

While the Obama administration eased many sanctions, they came back into full force under the Trump administration, which justified the sanctions by re-designating Cuba as a state sponsor for terrorism for its refusal to extradite 10 leaders of Colombia's biggest remaining guerrilla group, the National Liberation Army.

But that order was lifted when Colombia's first leftist leader was inaugurated in August and announced new peace talks with the group. The rebel leaders recently left Cuba to hold negotiations in Venezuela.

Biden has eased a few measures, but has also been sharply critical of the Cuban government's harsh treatment of protesters last year - which also hardened sentiment against concessions to the Cuban government among Cuban-Americans, a key voting bloc in Florida. But the administration recently made a few friendly gestures, offering $2 million in emergency relief to help with hurricane recovery.

Fully lifting the embargo would also require authorization by Congress at a time deep of political division in The US, only made more difficult by approaching midterm elections in which Florida is a swing state.

THE CONVERSATION (Academic rigour, journalistic flair) - Edition:
Canada - Culture & Society - 2 November 2022

Why The Ideology Of The ‘New Right’ Is So Dangerous

By Dr Johannes Steizinger, PhD,
McMaster University

The so-called New Right is aiming for an ideological renewal of right-wing politics by focusing on cultural identity and the politics of belonging. Here’s why that’s so ominous.

Giorgia Meloni gesturing during the handover ceremony with outgoing Prime Minister Mario Draghi at Chigi Palace in Rome in October 2022. Her political party, which has neo-fascist roots, secured the most votes in Italy’s national election in September. She took office as the country’s first far-right leader since the end of the Second World War. Photo credit: Andrew Medichini (AP).

The populist radical right has been on the rise for some time, with candidates and parties on the far-right fringe of the political spectrum reaching new heights across the world.

The electoral successes of Donald Trump in the United States, Marine Le Pen in France, the Alternative for Germany and, most recently, Giorgia Meloni’s Brothers of Italy, has put the spotlight on an ideological shift: the so-called New Right.

It’s a loose network of radical right-wing activists who organize themselves in regional initiatives such as the Alt-Right in The US, the Nouvelle Droite in France, the Neue Rechte in Germany, and the CasaPound in Italy.

This broad movement is aiming for an ideological renewal of right-wing politics by focusing on cultural identity and the politics of belonging. Such an approach is called ‘metapolitical’ since it first attempts to shape how we think about and experience our daily world, playing a long game to change the political structures of our societies.

Identity politics

The focus on identity politics has led to a very successful rebranding of far-right extremism. Proponents of the New Right are less committed than their predecessors to discussing natural superiority, and try to avoid the overt racism of traditional neo-Nazi groups, giving their political views a broader appeal.

They instead push the line that white people are oppressed in contemporary western societies. They present themselves as ‘patriotic activists’ who are simply concerned with responding to ‘uncontrolled immigration’, ‘anti-white discrimination’ and the ‘loss of traditions’.

One of their main enemies is globalization, against which they insist on a ‘right to difference’ (including Alain de Benoist, one of the founders of France’s New Right movement) for each culture.

They reject the melding of cultures since they believe that cultures are rooted in clearly demarcated and internally uniform social groups. This stems from their key contention that humanity consists of a plurality of distinct ‘ethnocultures’.

Ethnocultures are organic communities to which their members belong by birth. The family is frequently presented as the biological source of ethnocultural communities.

The members of a community also ostensibly share a way of life. Their communal life is characterized by specific cultural practices and moral values. A person’s individual identity is thus shaped by the ethnocultural community they belong to, according to these New Right proponents.

Passing on traditions

These proponents often invoke mythical beginnings or supposedly glorious chapters of a community’s past, and emphasize the necessity of historical continuity for its survival.

Cultural traditions therefore must be passed on from generation to generation without significant changes.

Fulfilling this task is the common destiny of the members of an ethnocultural community.

New Right advocates focused on identity politics believe that ethnocultures are in competition with each other and their encounters lead to clashes that threaten the collective identity of a community - a ready-made justification for violent conflicts, including war.

The results of these struggles show the supposed inequality of the different cultures.

Their concept of culture readily explains why the New Right is obsessed with migration and regard it as a major threat to their political vision. Consequently, they propagate conspiracy theories, including the ‘great replacement’ theory.

In this pernicious view, migration is depicted as a plot organized by liberal global elites to replace the native people of western countries with foreigners. The often proclaimed ‘right to difference’ therefore only applies to the relationships between groups. Individual members of a certain group have to conform to its overall character.

This segregationist agenda not only has harmful consequences for migrants, but also for those who are seen as members of an ethnoculture. Treating cultures as uniform can mask important differences between sub-groups within a culture, especially the diverging interests of the group’s elite and its non-elite members.

We saw this exploited in the rhetoric that British people should 'take back control' of the United Kingdom through voting for Brexit. This idea was questionable for a number of reasons, especially the false implication that all members of the group 'the British' would be more powerful following Brexit.

Dangerous

The ideology of the New Right is politically dangerous. It also depicts an inaccurate picture of how cultural life works.

Cultures neither have clear boundaries nor are they uniform and consistent over time. They are flexible and dynamic, in constant interaction with each other.

These intercultural encounters can be opportunities to grow and to increase both self-understanding and an understanding of others.

Think about the many formative influences that other cultures have had on Europe, including on Christianity (which comes from the Middle East) and the numerical system (which comes from India).

We should embrace the diversity of our cultural lives, and reject the New Right's attempts to further divide us.

While recent election results in Brazil, and in The US two years ago, may be hopeful signs, this is a broader fight about how we interpret the world.

It requires more than election victories to push back against the dangerous ethnocultural framing of social conflicts that's often embraced by mainstream politicians.

Instead, we need convincing counter-narratives that explain the causes of the economic crises we are facing and promote solidarity as a solution to the staggering social inequality that undermines all societies.

ILO Monitor on the World of Work- Global labour market to deteriorate further as Ukraine conflict and other crises continue

Press release | 31 October 2022

GENEVA (ILO News) -The outlook for global labour markets has worsened in recent months and on current trends job vacancies will decline and global employment growth will deteriorate significantly in the final quarter of 2022, according to a new ILO report.

Rising inflation is causing real wages to fall in many countries. This comes on top of significant declines in income during the COVID-19 crisis, which in many countries affected low-income groups most.

The ILO Monitor on the World of Work. 10th edition, finds that worsening labour market conditions are affecting both employment creation and the quality of jobs, pointing out that “there are already data suggesting a sharp labour market slowdown.” Labour market inequalities are likely to increase, contributing to a continued divergence between developed and developing economies.

“We need a strong commitment to initiatives such as the UN Global Accelerator on Jobs and Social Protection, which would create 400 million jobs and extend social protection to the four billion people who are currently unprotected.”

Gilbert F. Hounbo, ILO Director-General

According to the Monitor, “a set of multiple and overlapping crises, compounded by the Ukraine war and subsequent negative spill over effects, have materialized over 2022 which are deeply impacting the world of work”. The effects are being felt through food and energy inflation, declining real wages, growing inequality, shrinking policy options and higher debt in developing countries. A slowdown in economic growth and aggregate demand will also reduce demand for workers as uncertainty and worsening expectations affect hiring.

“Tackling this deeply worrying global employment situation, and preventing a significant global labour market downturn, will require comprehensive, integrated and balanced policies both nationally and globally,” said ILO Director-General, Gilbert F. Hounbo. “We need the implementation of a broad set of policy tools, including interventions in the prices of public goods; the rechanneling of windfall profits; strengthening income security through social protection; increasing income support; and targeted measures to assist the most vulnerable people and enterprises.

“We need a strong commitment to initiatives such as the UN Global Accelerator on Jobs and Social Protection, which would help countries create 400 million jobs and extend social protection to the four billion people who are currently unprotected. And a rapid end to the conflict in Ukraine, as demanded in the resolutions of the ILO Governing Body, would further contribute to improving the global employment situation.”

At the beginning of 2022 the number of global hours worked was recovering strongly, notably in higher-skilled occupations and among women. However, this was driven by an increase in informal jobs, jeopardizing the 15-year trend towards formalization. The situation worsened over the course of the year and in the third quarter of 2022 ILO estimates are that the level of hours worked was 1.5 per cent below pre-pandemic levels, amounting to a deficit of 40 million full-time jobs.

Ukraine

In addition to the terrible humanitarian cost, the war in Ukraine has had a dramatic negative impact on the country’s economy and labour market. The ILO estimates that employment in 2022 will be 15.5 per cent (2.4 million jobs) below the 2021, pre-conflict, level. This projection is not as low as the ILO’s estimate in April 2022, soon after the conflict began, that 4.8 million jobs would be Happy 44th Independence Anniversary to Dominica!

OECS Media Release

Thursday, November 3, 2022 - The OECS Commission extends its warmest congratulations to the Government and People of Dominica, on the occasion of the nation’s 44th Anniversary on Thursday 3rd November 2022, being celebrated under the theme “One Dominica, One People, One Vision”.

A virtual flag-raising ceremony was held by the Commission to commemorate the Anniversary. The ceremony featured an address by the Director General of the OECS, Dr. Didacus Jules.

In his remarks, OECS Director General Dr. Didacus Jules called for the collective actions of all Dominicans to address the mounting challenges facing them and the region. Dr. Jules also expressed gratitude for Dominica’s role in the success of the OECS integration movement. According to him,

“I wish to also take this opportunity to reiterate the Commission’s appreciation for the active role that Dominica continues to play in the work of the Organisation and to express gratitude for the country’s steadfast support, especially on matters related to the OECS regional integration agenda.”

lost. The positive change is a consequence of the reduction in the number of areas of Ukraine under occupation or with active hostilities. However, this partial labour market recovery is modest and highly fragile, the Monitor says.

The large number of internally displaced persons (IDPs) and refugees looking for jobs in Ukraine and elsewhere adds to the challenges and is likely to create downward pressure on wages, the report warns.

The report estimates that 10.4 per cent of the country’s total pre-war workforce are now refugees in other countries. This group of 1.6 million is overwhelmingly women, with many having worked previously in the education, health and social care sectors. A recent survey found that, so far, 28 per cent of the Ukrainian refugees surveyed had found waged or self-employment in their host countries.

The effects of the conflict are being felt in neighbouring countries’ labour markets which could lead to political and labour market destabilization in these countries. Further away, in Central Asia and globally, they are being reflected in higher and more volatile prices and increased food insecurity and poverty.

Coping with multiple crises

The report calls for social dialogue to be used to create the policies necessary to counter the labour market downturn. These should not just react to inflation but focus on the broader implications for employment, enterprises, and poverty. The report warns against excessive policy tightening which could cause “undue damage to jobs and incomes in both advanced and developing countries.”

RED, BLACK AND SURPLUSES

By: FAIR SHARE FOR ALL

Anyone who is surprised to find out that Unity was finding creative ways to give their families and supporters in the inner circle millions of dollars for nothing, doesn't understand the mindset of those who were at the helm of the government.

Douglas knew and understood Timothy. That is why so much time, effort and money had to be spent on attacking Dr Douglas, so that Timothy could be seen as a viable alternative. But because a leopard can't change its spots, it didn't take long for the warning given about Timothy by his nephew to define him.

The politician that typified Unity is the kind that pillaged and plundered many African nations, many Caribbean islands and many South American countries. They had one objective after getting into power. That was getting wealthy by any means.

Their modus operandi is the same. Give the people the crumbs while they enrich themselves, their families and inner circles through all sorts of overinflated projects. For a while the people are satisfied with the crumbs. But only for a while.

And that is why Unity, which sounded so perfect, didn't even last two terms. If the politicians in Unity had been honest and had the best interest of the federation at heart, the Timothy Harris led government would have lasted one year. They would have abandoned the government when they realized how much racketeering and corruption were taking place.

But all of them went down Church Street and saw how they could milk this cash cow. They set up companies. Their close family members and friends set up companies. They sold ice. They rented tents. They sold water. They rented out heavy equipment.

They sold passports. They sold cement and concrete. They set up construction companies and built huts and prisons and condos. Now among the nouveau riche, they no longer had to buy shoes nor watches. They no longer had to buy anything. The Treasury paid their way.

That is why now we are hearing that there are no surpluses after surpluses after surpluses. We are learning that the country is actually in the red. We are being told that a particular bank had to be rescued from certain collapse for how it was being used as a cash cow.

Again, no surprise there.

We remember how senior people in the ministry of finance threatened to resign if a certain finance minister was not moved. This was before 2015. This person wanted to boast about all these surpluses so that bills were not paid or were not paid on time.

So we can only imagine the financial gymnastics and maneuvering that went on for seven years in the Treasury, the Development Bank, National Bank and Social Security. That is why annual reports became non-existent and certain directors have fled the country.

That is why I am happy to hear that the Integrity in Public Life Act will become a reality before year end. We must keep politicians and others in high places accountable to us who gave them a job.

We want our beloved Labour Party to be in power for a long time so we have to keep their feet to the fire. If they are still not answering our calls or messages, they have to find a way to do so. I know that this is the first time in government for the majority of them but by now they should have devised a way in which to respond when their constituents contact them.

We know that whenever real progress happens in the federation, it is because the real Labour Party is in government. That is why I might grumble but I am sticking with my Labour.

T20 World Cup: Shadab Khan-inspired Pakistan beat South Africa to avoid elimination

ICC Men's T20 World Cup Group 2, Sydney

Pakistan 185-9 (20 overs): Shadab 52 (22), Iftikhar 51 (35); Nortje 4-41

South Africa 108-9 (14 overs): Bavuma 36 (19); Shaheen 3-14

Pakistan won by 33 runs (DLS)

Pakistan boosted their slim hopes of progressing in the Men's T20 World Cup with a brilliantly frenetic win against South Africa at the Sydney Cricket Ground.

Pakistan launched a recovery from 48-4 to post 185-9 and then took regular wickets to deny South Africa in a chase shortened by rain to win by 33 runs on the Duckworth-Lewis-Stern method.

The result means Pakistan can still qualify for the semi-finals but need to beat Bangladesh on Sunday and hope South Africa fail to beat the Netherlands or India lose to Zimbabwe.

They are indebted to Shadab Khan and Iftikhar Ahmed, who combined for a wild partnership of 82 from 35 balls.

Shadab smashed 52 from 22 balls and Iftikhar a 35-ball 51 in an infectious display of hitting, to the delight of a raucous, Pakistan-dominated crowd.

Then, after Temba Bavuma and Aiden Markram put on 49 in 27 balls to give South Africa hope, leg-spinner Shadab removed both within three deliveries.

Rain arrived soon after, with the target reduced to 142 off 14 overs, South Africa needing 73 off 30 balls from 69-4.

Heinrich Klaasen hinted at an improbable Proteas win by striking three fours in his first four balls after the restart but his dismissal, caught off Shaheen Afridi, allowed Pakistan to clinically close out the match.

Previously unbeaten South Africa would have been the first side to confirm a semi-final spot had they won but will still go through by beating the Netherlands on Sunday.

Pakistan could go through if they beat Bangladesh and South Africa-Netherlands is washed out. The two sides would then be level on six points, but Pakistan would go through by having three wins to the Proteas' two.

Shadab keeps Pakistan in the hunt

Pakistan struggles in this World Cup have largely been down to their batting, including when they failed to chase 131 in a one-run defeat by Zimbabwe.

They looked to be heading the same way again when Mohammad Rizwan played on to Wayne Parnell in the first over and their other out-of-form talisman, captain Babar Azam, was well caught running back from mid-wicket by Kagiso Rabada off the bowling of Lungi Ngidi.

But from 48-4 after 6.3 overs, Shadab and Iftikhar launched a thrilling counter-attack.

Shadab whipped three fours and four sixes, including clear the ropes off successive deliveries from fast bowler Anrich Nortje, who took 4-41 amid the bedlam.

Iftikhar swung Ngidi for a 106m six over the leg-side - the longest hit of the tournament.

Right-hander Shadab's fifty was reached in just 21 balls, making it Pakistan's second fastest in T20s.

South Africa did not help themselves. They dropped four catches in the manic second half of the innings, in which 117 runs were scored.

It allowed Pakistan to reach a score far greater than should have been possible, which is where the match was lost from the Proteas perspective.

"We didn't adapt well enough," said South Africa captain Temba Bavuma. "We had them five wickets down early but then allowed them to get that formidable score.

"We want to put this game behind us as quickly as possible and make sure we are back at our best mentally for the next game."

Jayden Seales: Sussex bring in West Indies fast bowler for first part of 2023

Jayden Seales is regarded as one of West Indies' most promising young fast bowlers

West Indies fast bowler Jayden Seales has agreed to join Sussex for the first three months of the 2023 season.

The Trinidad-born 21-year-old made his Test debut against South Africa in June 2021 and has gone on to play nine Tests, taking 36 wickets.

He became the youngest bowler ever to take five wickets in a Test for the West Indies after returning figures of 5-55 against Pakistan in August 2021.

He will be able to play in both the County Championship and T20 Blast.

"As a young fast-bowler, I want to expose myself to as many different conditions and challenges as possible," Seales told the Sussex website.

"I can't wait to test myself in England and hopefully contribute to a winning start for Sussex in both Championship and T20 cricket."

Sussex performance director Keith Greenfield added: "Securing a quality overseas fast/seam bowler was hugely important us for the start of next summer, particularly in Championship cricket, so to secure Jayden ahead of others is fantastic for us.

"Those who have played against him and seen him at close quarters have been impressed by his skills and appetite for bowling.

"He has certainly started impressively in Test cricket, and it is also great that he wants to play County cricket and knows how important it can be for him going forward."

Pakistan's bowlers once again impressed.

An already challenging target was made more difficult when Quinton de Kock was caught for a five-ball duck in the first over trying to heave Shaheen, who also had the dangerous Rilee Rossouw caught at deep third in his next over.

The Bavuma-Markram stand was the only point Pakistan were pushed back, Bavuma stepping across and swinging a towering six over fine leg en route to 36 from 19 balls.

But Shadab had captain Bavuma caught behind with his first ball and bowled Markram for 20 with one that skidded on.

After the rain, Tristan Stubbs smacked the second ball for six but the wickets they had already lost was always going to make the chase tough.

A steepling catch off Klaasen's leading edge was well taken by Mohammad Wasim off Shaheen, who claimed 3-14 overall, and Stubbs pulled Naseem Shah's slower bouncer to deep square-leg.

South Africa finished on 108-9 but have another chance at progression in their own hands, while Pakistan are relying on other results.

"I am very happy the way the team performed," said Pakistan captain Babar Azam. "The first two matches we lost and they cost us but the way the team has played in the last two games, they always give us 100%.

"Cricket is a funny game and you never know what can happen. Let's hope for the best."
