Mangoes Should Never Be "Knocking Dog"

It is mango season once again in our Federation of St. Kitts and Nevis, and as is customary at this time of year, the sweet aroma of ripe mangoes fills the air. Trees are heavily laden, baskets are overflowing and neighbours are exchanging fruit over fences and others through car windows, in offices and in the streets.

In true Caribbean fashion, we are blessed with an abundance of one of nature's most delicious gifts.

In fact, we are often so blessed that we use the popular local expression that mangoes are "knocking dog"- meaning there are so many that some inevitably end up spoiling on the ground.

But perhaps this annual reality should prompt us to ask an important question: Can we do more with our seasonal fruits?

Mangoes are among the most versatile fruits available to us. They can be enjoyed fresh, blended into juices and smoothies, transformed into jams, jellies, chutneys and preserves, incorporated into sweet and savoury dishes, baked into pastries or even used in beauty and skincare products. Around the world, mangoes are the foundation of thriving industries. Yet here at home, we often watch countless fruits fall and go to waste.

This is why credit must be given to the annual Mango Festival in Nevis, which continues to shine a spotlight on the culinary possibilities of the fruit. Each year, the festival showcases the incredible variety of mangoes grown locally while demonstrating the many creative ways they can be enjoyed. It reminds us that the mango is far more than a seasonal snack-it is an asset with cultural, culinary and economic value.

One of the beautiful things about mango season is the generosity it brings out in our people. Few things are more Caribbean than someone calling out, 'Come and get some mangoes before they spoil! or 'I got some mangoes here for you'. We share with family, friends, neighbours and even complete strangers. It speaks to a kindred spirit that has long defined us as a people.

Many of us grew up learning the art of picking mangoes, trekking to favourite trees in the mountains, climbing into yards or carefully selecting the perfect fruit from a towering branch. Those experiences are woven into our collective memories and help shape our national identity.

Imagine, however, if mangoes were scarce. We would likely be finding every possible way to stretch their use and maximize their value. We would treasure every fruit. Yet because they are plentiful, we sometimes fail to fully appreciate the opportunity that abundance presents.

As we enjoy this season, let us challenge ourselves to become more innovative. Let us explore opportunities for home-based businesses, restaurant offerings, value-added products and preservation techniques that make use of our plentiful harvest.

Of course, while mangoes are delicious and nutritious, moderation remains important. Because they contain natural sugars and calories, excessive consumption can contribute to blood sugar spikes, weight gain, bloating and digestive discomfort.

So by all means, enjoy the mangoes. Share them generously. Celebrate them proudly. But let us also commit to doing more with this remarkable fruit. If we truly embrace what we have, perhaps one day mangoes in St. Kitts and Nevis will no longer be "knocking dog" but instead helping to nourish families, inspire businesses and strengthen our local economy.

Nyabinghi PRO Calls For Greater Black Education, Cultural Awareness Among Youth

By: Precious Mills

BASSETERRE, St.Kitts (Wednesday 28th May 2026)-The importance of black education, cultural identity and ensuring that young people understand their African heritage was underscored during this year's 63rd anniversary of African Liberation Day observance, as Public Relations Officer of the Nyabinghi Theocracy Order, Samande 'Ras Iyah' Reid, called for stronger educational focus on historical consciousness among youth.

The Order, which has over the years been one of the organising body for the annual commemoration of African Liberation Day activities, is using this year's platform to reinforce its call for deeper integration of African history, cultural studies and identity education into both formal and informal learning spaces.

Speaking during an interview with this media house on Wednesday 27th May 2026, Ras Iyah emphasized that education must play a central role in helping young people understand African heritage, identity, and the historical struggles that have shaped present-day society.

The week of activities, Sunday 24th May to Saturday 30th May aims to bring together for both St.Kitts and Nevis community outreach, educational presentations, cultural programmes, and youth-focused initiatives aimed at strengthening awareness of African identity, liberation history, and community development.

This year's observance is guided by the theme: "Behold how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity," which Ras Iyah describes as central to the spirit, purpose and execution of the week's programme.

"We are basically looking from our aspect to highlight where we can do good to our community as a level of giving back to the community," he said.

He explained that African Liberation Day continues to serve as a reminder of the significance of the 1963 Charter signed by 32 African heads of state, which laid the foundation for continental unity and what is now widely commemorated as Freedom Day.

"The presentation will be a quest of the highlighting of the Charter of 1963, where 32 heads of state were impacted to sign a charter to bring out what we call Liberation Day, Freedom Day," Ras Iyah stated.

He described the observance as both reflective and community-driven, stressing that it must translate into meaningful educational engagement beyond ceremonial recognition.

A strong emphasis this year has been placed on youth engagement, particularly within schools and early childhood settings, where organisers aim to strengthen cultural awareness from an early age.

Ras Iyah noted that the aim is to ensure young people remain connected to history, identity, and purpose.

As gathered, one of the key features of this year's observance included outreach to preschool and primary school children, where culturally representative materials such as black dolls and African themed colouring books are expected to be presented on Friday 29th May in both St.Kitts and Nevis.

When asked about the significance of these materials, Ras Iyah explained that representation in early childhood development plays a vital role in shaping identity and self-awareness.

"We must be able to have something that is impacted, that can show us who we really is and how we are approaching ourselves," he said.

He added that the intention is not division, but empowerment through cultural awareness.

"We must be able to keep these things, not to be a comfort within racism but a comfort within knowing who we are," Ras Iyah stated.

He also emphasized that African identity is rooted in consciousness rather than geography.

"I don't have to be in Africa to be an African. It's born right in us, but it's the acknowledgement we have to acquire to know who we are as Africans," he said.

Ras Iyah encouraged continued efforts toward unity, equality, dignity, and cultural pride.

The observance will culminate in a Solidarity Rally at Independence Square on Saturday 30th May slated for 2:00PM to 8:00 PM, featuring speeches, cultural performances and community participation.

Other activities for the Week of African Liberation Day Activities include: Sunday 24th May: Gravesite visits to Nyabinghi and Rastafari martyrs, followed by Nyabinghi congregation marking the eve of African Liberation Day, Monday 25th May: African Liberation Day celebrations in Nevis featuring cultural presentations, poetry and Nyabinghi chanting, Tuesday 26th May : Community care package distribution in Nevis to the elderly and needy, Wednesday 27th May: Care package distribution in St. Kitts to vulnerable community members and also Thursday 28th May: Educational presentation on African Liberation Day to high schools.

Mom Mourns Loss Of Her “Best Friend” After Fatal Traffic Accident

By: Spokesman Newsroom

BASSETERRE, St. Kitts (Thursday 28th May 2026) -A mother based in the United States is mourning the tragic loss of her daughter, Victoria McElwee, a veterinary student at Ross University School of Veterinary Medicine in St. Kitts, who died following a recent fatal traffic accident that took place on Friday 22nd May 2026.

Taking to social media in an emotional tribute, the grieving mother Cammy McElwee described the devastating moment she received news of her daughter’s passing, writing, “never imagined in my life I would ever have to write these words.”

She shared, at the time, that she was in the process of making arrangements to bring her daughter’s body home.

“My beautiful daughter, Summer, passed away in St. Kitts and Nevis, where she was attending Ross University School of Veterinary Medicine pursuing her dream of becoming a veterinarian,” she wrote.

“I am now having to bring my baby girl home, and I have been told the process could take about a week. I will continue to update everyone as I learn more and arrangements are made.”

The grieving mother also made an emotional appeal for prayers and support during what she described as an “unimaginable time.”

“Please pray for my family and me during this unimaginable time. Summer was not only my daughter, but my very best friend, my heart, and my world,” she said.

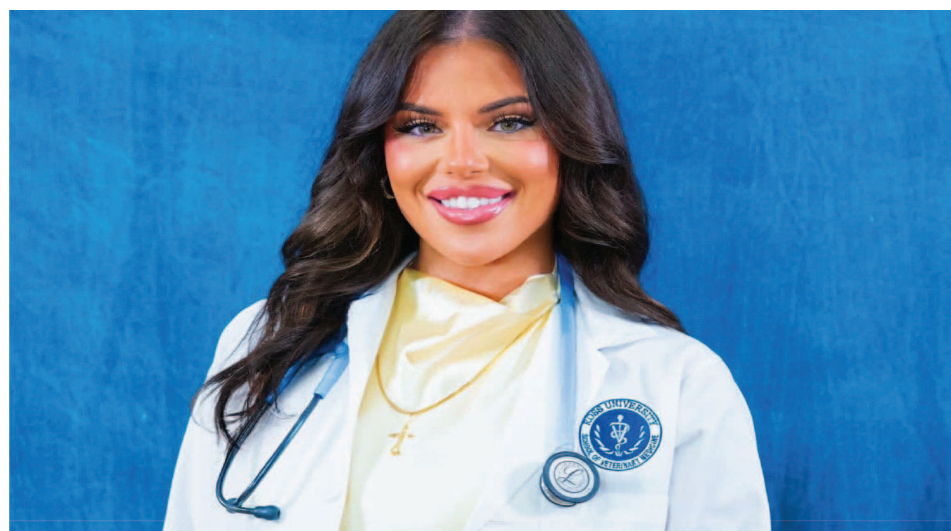

In her tribute, she painted a picture of a vibrant young woman full of life and affection.

“She loved dancing, the beach, her family, and her friends more than anything. She adored her dog, Ryder, and her cat, Kendal. She had the most beautiful smile and could light up an entire room the moment she walked in,” she wrote.

“Anyone who knew Summer knew how deeply she loved and how special she truly was.”

She added that she is struggling to process the sudden loss.

“I am completely devastated and struggling to process this heartbreaking

New Two-Member Alliance Eyes Constituencies 5 and 7 in Early Campaign Push

By: Spokesman Newsroom

BASSETERRE, St. Kitts (Thursday 28th May 2026)- Constituencies Five and Seven-both held by longstanding parliamentarians and former Team Unity administration leaders-have emerged as early focal points of community outreach by the newly aligned One Federal Alliance (OFA) and New Direction Party (NDP), ahead of the next General Election.

Via a social media live-streamed 'Conversation and Connection' town hall meeting held on Wednesday 27th May 2026 in Sandy Point of Constituency Five, the Leader of the One Federal Alliance, Hans Richards, used the platform to signal what he described as a shift in national direction, saying: "Tonight is not just about launching a new direction for our people, for our community and our future."

According to him: "For over two decades, the same representation has had the opportunity but tonight we begin a conversation about what is possible when the people come first again," he stated.

The OFA stated via press release on 21st May that it had formally been established as a new political entity. A following statement on 27th May announced that it is "joining forces with the New Direction Party to build a stronger, fairer, and more united Saint Kitts and Nevis."

According to that statement, Mr. Henry Marsham has been appointed Deputy Leader of OFA, while Ms. Kurtiesse Caines serves as Assistant General Secretary. The alliance has not yet confirmed details of a formal national launch for the NDP.

Meanwhile, the NDP has announced plans for continued outreach in Constituency Seven, where its candidate Caines is expected to host a town hall meeting on Monday 1st June at the Outreach Covenant Church in Phillips Estate of Constituency Seven.

Leader of the opposition People's Labour Party (PLP) Dr. Timothy Harris is the Parliamentary Representative for Constituency Seven while the Parliamentary Representative for Constituency Five is Dr. Shawn Richards, the immediate past Leader of the opposition People's Action Movement (PAM).

Dr. Harris, immediate past Prime Minister, was the Leader of the former Team Unity government which saw Dr. Richards as Deputy Leader; both now politically estranged from their former broken up alliance.

The NDP is pushing that: "With fresh ideas, honest leadership, and a vision for sustainable growth, we aim to empower citizens, strengthen communities, and inspire hope for generations to come. A New Voice, A Clean Choice, A Better Tomorrow!"

Meanwhile, OFA Leader Richards, speaking at the recent town hall event in Sandy Point, further expressed appreciation to those who attending the meeting while outlining the purpose of the gathering.

"I just want to give my gratitude for those of you who are present this evening. And it's a pleasure to be here in Sandy Point to share with you the direction of the new political alliance known as One Federal Alliance," he said.

He criticised what he described as long-standing political patterns, calling for change in leadership style and outcomes.

"Far too long we settle for promises instead of progress, loyalty instead of leadership, and politics instead of results and real results. So tonight, that will change. So it begins a change," he said.

Richards emphasized that the alliance represents more than the formation of a political party.

"Tonight is not just about launching a new political party. Tonight is not just about launching a new direction for our people, for our community and our future," he said.

He outlined the core values of the movement.

"The One Federal Alliance stands for leadership that listens, leadership that serves and leadership that delivers and that will deliver," Richards stated.

He stressed the need for improved opportunities and accountability across society.

"We are here because people deserve more, more opportunity for young people, more support for working families and more respect for our elders, more accountability from those elected to serve," he said.

Richards also framed the movement as one focused on unity and national rebuilding.

"This movement is not about division, it's about rebuilding hope, restoring trust, and creating a future where every citizen has a voice and every community has a fair chance to grow and succeed," he said.

He further rejected partisan ownership of communities.

"This movement is not built on fear; it's built on courage, vision, unity and action and together we will prove that Sandy Point does not belong to any political party or any politician it belongs to the people," Richards said.

He concluded with a call for a new beginning.

"Tonight a new chapter begins. tonight together we rise," he added.

OFA Chairman Kevin Taylor, also addressing the gathering, outlined a broader development vision centred on national transformation and modernisation.

"... It requires discipline, mobility, a change of mindset, transparency, and measurable risk," he said.

He pointed to economic and environmental priorities as part of the alliance's long-term agenda.

"We can envision a nation powered by 100% renewable energy for the modern and stronger communities," he stated.

Taylor added that the movement's approach is grounded in collective effort.

"We build together. We decided not by chance, we built by vision, discipline, courage and determination," he said.

The NDP symbol is a key, while the OFA is represented by a car, according to promotional material circulating on social media.

The colour purple is being used by both parties.

Alert - St. Kitts-Nevis Travel Advisory

May 27, 2026

As part of ongoing efforts to safeguard public health, the Government of St. Kitts and Nevis continues to closely monitor the evolving situation with the outbreak of the Ebola Virus Disease (EVD) and strengthen preparedness measures to reduce the risk of Ebola entering the Federation of St. Kitts and Nevis.

The Ministry of Health advises the public that, based on the latest updates from the Africa

Centres for Disease Control and Prevention and the Nigeria Centre for Disease Control and Prevention, several countries have been identified as high-risk areas for Ebola Virus Disease (EVD) transmission and/or importation.

The African countries identified are as follows:

1. The Democratic Republic of Congo
2. Uganda
3. The Central African Republic
4. Angola
5. Burundi
6. Ethiopia
7. Kenya
8. Rwanda
9. South Sudan
10. Tanzania
11. Zambia
12. Nigeria

The Ministry of National Security and the Ministry of Health strongly advise nationals of the Federation to carefully reconsider and, where possible, avoid non-essential travel to the abovementioned countries given the current public health risks associated with Ebola Virus Disease (EVD).

Additionally, travelers arriving from countries identified as high-risk for Ebola transmission or importation may be denied entry into the Federation. This temporary measure is being implemented to protect public health and reduce the risk of the importation of Ebola virus.

The Ministry of National Security, in close collaboration with the Ministry of Health and regional and international partners, continues to strengthen border surveillance and enhance national preparedness measures aimed at safeguarding the health and safety of all residents and visitors. The public is assured that proactive steps are being taken to reduce the risk of Ebola entering the Federation and to ensure a coordinated and effective public health response.

individual excellence but it also celebrates the collective strength and spirit of the entire police force. It reminds us that behind every uniform is a person who chooses to make a difference- not for glory, not for recognition, but for the good of the entire nation...

"Far too often we fail to recognize the importance of our officers, as they're often taken for granted and given scant recognition for braving the odds to ensure our safety and security. As officers, you are on the front line during disasters, risking your lives to save others, protecting the most vulnerable, and confronting the most hardened criminals among us. I have said it before and I say this evening again, that I sleep better at nights knowing that you are on the watch. You are on the rampart protecting and serving the people of Nevis and St. Kitts," he said, pledging the continued support of the Nevis Island Administration (NIA).

The Premier also commended Commissioner of Police James Sutton and the RSCNPF High Command, with special recognition for Superintendent Alonzo Carty, whom he noted continues to lead the Nevis Division with distinction.

The ceremony also marked a historic milestone, as WPC Shaneke Clarke was named Constable of the Year- the first female officer to receive this distinction over the course of the ceremony's span.

ECDU Hosta Cricket Festival Ahead Of Child Month Launch

Basseterre, St. Kitts, Wednesday, May 27, 2026: The Early Childhood Development Unit (ECDU) hosted a Cricket Festival on Wednesday, May 27, as part of its pre-Child Month activities aimed at promoting healthy lifestyles and active living among children.

The festival brought together students, teachers, and supporters for a fun-filled day of cricket activities, teamwork, and recreation. The festival served as an exciting lead-up to the official launch of Child Month, which will take place on May 31.

Mr. Dennis Phillip, President, St. Kitts Cricket Association, commended the partnership and emphasized the importance of introducing the sport to children from an early age.

“With this initiative, and this being the second annual cricket festival, we consider the Early Childhood Development Unit to be an advocate with us in pushing cricket to the next level. Starting cricket at this early age is a very good indication that cricket will reach somewhere, and so to them I want to say thank you very much for working with us, and we’re looking forward to the 3rd and many more.”

The Cricket Festival was designed not only to encourage physical activity but also to foster social interaction, sportsmanship, and enjoyment among the nation’s youngest learners.

Mrs. Icilma Knight, Parent Advocate at ECDU, highlighted the children's excitement and active participation during the festival activities.

“We are having our cricket festival. It is one of our pre-Child Month activities, and it is in keeping with our theme, so we are focusing on movement today. The children are having a marvellous time running, batting, throwing the ball, everything that has to do with cricket, and I believe that from today’s exercise we are going to have some cricketers in St. Kitts.”

Child Month 2026 is being celebrated under the theme, ‘Fueling our Bodies with the Best – Good Nutrition, Movement and Rest.’ The theme highlights the importance of healthy eating, physical activity, and adequate rest in supporting the overall growth and development of children.

Several activities have been planned in celebration of Child Month. These include a Promotional Day, Church Services, Sports Day, and the highly anticipated Grand Parade.

The Early Childhood Development Unit continues to encourage parents, teachers, and communities to support the month’s activities and promote healthy habits among children.

Saint Kitts And Nevis Under Drought Warning Amid Below-Normal Rainfall Forecast

availability of rain-fed water resources.

“While there remains the possibility of major rainfall events during the wet season, the overall trend suggests that Saint Kitts and Nevis is likely to experience below-normal rainfall totals for the season,” he stated.

In light of the projected dry conditions, Mr. Burke emphasised the importance of early preparation and conservation efforts.

“Residents and businesses, along with all water-dependent sectors, are encouraged to exercise water conservation activities to minimise the expected impacts of reduced rainfall totals,” he said. “Taking early conservation actions will be critical in helping us weather the drier-than-normal period ahead.”

Basseterre, Saint Kitts, May 26, 2026 (SKNIS): Senior Meteorological Officer Elmo Burke, is urging residents, businesses, and water-dependent sectors across Saint Kitts and Nevis to begin implementing water conservation measures as the Federation faces the likelihood of below-normal rainfall over the coming months.

According to Mr. Burke, rainfall totals across Saint Kitts and Nevis have already fallen below the climatological average in recent months, and current forecasts indicate that the upcoming wet season is also expected to bring less rainfall than usual. As a result, a drought warning has been issued for the Federation.

“Regional climate conditions, including those affecting Saint Kitts and Nevis, are expected to be influenced by an El Niño phenomenon,” Mr. Burke explained. “This will likely result in warmer temperatures, particularly during the summer months, along with drier-than-normal conditions as convective activity becomes suppressed at times.”

Mr. Burke noted that the Federation typically receives the majority of its rainfall during the wet season, which coincides with the Atlantic Hurricane Season. Any significant reduction in rainfall during this critical period could negatively impact the
